

On March 20th and 21st, 2020 GlogauAIR opens its doors to art lovers and enthusiasts from all over Berlin, inviting them to visit 13 studios of contemporary artworks by GlogauAIR's resident artists from nine countries across the world and the work of So&So Studio in our project space. The works seen here are the result of three or six months of intensive creation and production right here at GlogauAIR and offer an immediate connection and direct engagement with creation at the source.

Project Space

So & So Studio is an anonymous design practice, based in Berlin. The natural convergence of their artistic and architectural languages is evident within their growing body of works, between the EU and the US. Blurring the lines between intuition and refinement through each of their creative interventions, they continue to critique and question the built and unbuilt environment around them. Their work is playful in nature with a process that is fun, iterative and at times inappropriate.

The work of So & So Studio ranges in scale and focus from architectural design through urban discourse, product development and art installations. Regardless of project nature or scope, So & So Studio seizes every opportunity to connect today's relevance in architectural thinking to the people that are occupying those spaces.

About GlogauAIR and Chema Alvargonzalez

GlogauAIR is an art space and residency in a historic building in Kreuzberg open to new ideas and interchange. Centered on the principles to explore, create, and exhibit, the residency program offers the use of a studio space in a historic building in Berlin and a base in Kreuzberg from which to explore and discover the creative side of the city.

At GlogauAIR, artists from diverse social and geographical backgrounds find a place to develop their works in a dynamic environment of coexistence, exchange of ideas and internationalization. At the same time they get to know a new culture and landscape in Berlin, getting influences from the city, which has become a pioneering place for contemporary culture.

GlogauAIR continues the project began by its founder, the late artist Chema Alvargonzalez, who was a conceptual multidisciplinary artist who lived and worked between Barcelona and Berlin.

He lived the exciting events surrounding fall of the Berlin Wall in 1989 and the period following it. He studied at the HdK under the direction of Rebecca Horn and obtained a Master of Fine Arts and Multimedia in 1994. After his studies he materialised most of his artistic works between both cities. During those periods where he lived in Berlin he introduced several incoming artists to city and the richness of its artistic scene. The pillars upon which GlogauAIR was founded is an openness and receptivity to new ideas; an integration of the international and local approaches and perspectives on contemporary art.
