Justin Ross is a curator and writer with extensive experience in exhibition programming and artist support. Having worked with artists at the intersection of technology and fine art in New York, Tokyo and Berlin, he recently moved to London to continue his work connecting artists and creatives with industry and collectors.

Justin has previously helped organize the exhibition and residency programs at SomoS Arts from 2013 to 2018 and GlogauAIR in Berlin from 2018 to 2020. From April 2020, he was the head of partnerships for ArtConnect, the largest artist-driven platform in Europe.He returned to GlogauAIR in 2022 to continue working with artists through GlogauAIR's digital programs for artists.

His interests encompass cryptography, retrofuturism, the digital divide, and emerging art in all mediums. He obtained a Bachelor's degree in the history of science at Yale University, completed a research fellowship in cultural elements of computing at the University of Tokyo, and a Master's in cultural studies at the University of London.